FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1915.

The bylaw providing money to reimburse the Industrial Association and take over the Viking gas well is worth supporting. The city is now in a position to develop the property. But it will be some day, and the gas will be there when wanted. And in fairness to those who put their money into the experiment we should either return the money or give them the gas without further delay.

A correspondent recalls that the gas company contractors, a couple of years ago when the ratemakers voted money for the erection of a market building, He is entirely within the facts. For years The Bulletin had advocated the erection of a market building, as the ratemakers had decided the building should be placed on the First street site that phase of the question was no longer before the house. But we have not heard the contractor and his friends make an unqualified failure. The crowds who flocked to the ramshackle contraptions on the Rio street site do not go near the solid building on the First street site, and the First street site is an attempt to continue the market there means more taxes or no market at all. Having discovered our mistake the sensible thing to do is to correct it before the market goes to the First street site or we have to go down in our pockets to pay the running expenses of another losing proposition. It in years to come to the settlement of Hudson's Bay reserves increases the consumption of gas in the case of a fresh of the First street site sufficiently, the building will still be there for use. But meantime, the public should not be deprived of the advantages of a market which experience has shown the change of location under present conditions to amount to.

The Colonial Secretary has been expressing the appreciation of the British Government for the part being taken by the Canadian Dominions in the war. It is gratifying to know that our efforts are appreciated, of which fact the proofs have been innumerable. In fact, we have seen some what embarrassed by the constant congratulations that have been showered upon us over the comparatively small effort we have as yet put forth. While Britain from one point of view has done up to three hundred thousand men. And however large efforts we may make there is no thanks coming to us from any body. Canadians do not want to be embarrassed by the comparisons of Great Britain, and they understand very clearly that Canada would be the prize demanded by victorious Germany. It is our own initiative we are fighting, though it is also a battle for the safety of all British Dominions. Presuming Canadians to have common sense and a normal regard for their national life and personal interests, Canada had no option but to take part in the war.

For us, as for the people of Great Britain, the issue is simple and plain. We must fight and win, or we must cease to be a nation. The alternative of last resort, to let Canada go to do the fighting for us—was not possible to any section of the Canadian people save that headed by Messrs. Bourassa, Lavergne, Cormier, etc., etc. Canadians have not thrown themselves into the struggle in a way more in keeping with their supreme interest in the outcome; it is because this section has attained a position in which it can do nothing but support the Government, not because the Canadian people are wanting in recognition of the issues at stake, or in willingness to meet that issue with the last item of our resources of men and money.

Sir Max Aitken has been made official reporter for the Canadian government. Sir Max is known as good at getting a grip on a monopoly. But it is to be hoped he does not "mergerize" the war news and hold up the newspapers.

After all, which is the greater menace to society and the more contemptible character: the criminal who takes chances on being caught or shot, or the legal shark whose role is to protect criminals from punishment and share their plunder?

The city council have decided to renew the public market. The public will expect them to make good on the market when they used to do. The Journal expresses its disapprobation by characterizing the move as the "extreme of absurdity."

Another bullet is about to fall in defence of Canada, the Empire and free civilization. The bereaved relatives will have the sincere sympathy of their townspeople. They will also have the comforting knowledge that a man never fell in better cause.

If certain firms supplied rotten boots to the first contingent where is the assurance that the next firm has not been so wanton? Cartridges loaded with gunpowder instead of powder or bayonets made of wrought iron instead of steel? This is no time to throw the mantle of charitable secrecy over the crime of treasonable thievery in the supply of equipment to the troops.

General Hughes says he would like to shoot a manufacturer who supplies rotten boots. He says the punishment would be severe, but there are a lot of other people who feel as the General says he feels about it. Meantime, if the General will just say nothing more, we will see what milder methods can do, without in any way diminishing his right to bring the Ross rifle to bear on the master any time he is so minded.

The ratemakers are not very deeply concerned in what the police department by sundry gentlemen who have been under police attention, by former members of the Conservative party, and the recent nationalist party of Quebec, as well as by lawyers police court business has suffered a slump because of the clean-up. What they are concerned in is the fact that they are not getting police protection for their business, and for their safety. While they get that they are not very likely to go into a frenzy and demand the head of the chief because of what may be said about him by those who may be supposed to have cause to dislike him and his methods and ideals.

At present two battalions of volunteers for the third over-contingent are drilling every day from their headquarters in the Victoria and Fourth street armories. The men are quartered in such different parts of the city, as it has been possible to make arrangements for them, and have been quartered in the armories twice a day. Some consideration has been granted in the matter of street car passes. It would be well, at least until the men are at their expeditionary posts, to give them street car transportation to and from their daily drills. They have not yet received their equipment and are therefore bearing their own expenses with some complete civilian rig when it will only be required for a very short time. The men were given street car transportation to and from their daily drills, at any rate until they entered their quarters at the exhibition grounds.

THE WAY OF THE SEA.

The grand spectacle displays of naval warfare, the long old days of the British navy, the days when they fought, and every victory with it was bought, have all departed, and it was while still in the place of wonder walls, The spiritless spirit over the sea harbors. The deep desolate shores and conditions new. The tragic insignity of man has been shown in the scenes of naval warfare, terrible and vast last, and "thus we have totemes, sub-marines, and scenes of war, the like of which have not been seen before." Thus mighty, tremendous, terror-stricken, the sea, a floating battlefield, giant guns duty all equal to the task, the giant guns of the world, appear no man-of-war in sight; the jolly sailors, shouting for a fight, care-free, have disappeared, and ever watchful for the hoped-for ocean waves, a thousand ships sink to the bottom, a great number of them by mines, few such as fate the modern dreadnoughts know.

THE BORDEN-BOURASSA GOVERNMENT.

On the platform and in his paper, Le Devor, Henri Bourassa is making statements and using arguments that would cause the prompt arrest of any ordinary citizen. Such a remarkable condition cannot exist without a responsible government. The reason he is not arrested by the government of the Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden. Mr. Bourassa was born a liberal, a grandson of the Papineau who headed the reform party in the House of Assembly. He was a member of the parliament of 1866 as a liberal, but before that parliament closed he had declared his opposition to the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and supported the anti-Laurier Canadian party.

He was a member of the parliament of 1878 as a member of the conservative party of imperial policy, and he is to be satisfied with Bourassa's position which he has held from the start and is struggling to retain his control of public opinion in Quebec, and of the nationalist party in the House of Commons. The reason he is not arrested by the government is because he put the government in office and kept it there, and because he has exerted a measure of authority over its policy which they did not dare touch. There has come with the government must either accept or reject the policy and principles of Bourassa. An alliance with him was treacherous in the first place, but the continuance of that alliance under existing conditions is treacherous.

The idea of press censorship seems to be that it was confined to matters relating to the war. On the initiative of the counsel for Alderman Clarke in his trial for conspiracy it was extended to the proceedings that followed. The Journal's editor urged for the establishment of press censorship. It would be dangerous to suggest a reason in this instance.

From time to time during several years past The Bulletin has made reference to the existence of a Black Hand organization in this city. How far reaching the purposes and activities of that organization were has recently been established by the press censorship established by the counsel of Alderman Clarke in his recent trial prevents more specific statement.

In reference to the establishment of a government to establish and preserve unity amongst the people while the country is at war, it might be noted that the visit of General Hughes, minister of militia to Edmonton, and his conference with the Pacific island with the Conservative nominations in Strathearn and Regina, and not much at other points.

C. C. McCaul, C.S., bursts into Journal print to take strong exception to The Bulletin's article on the subject of press censorship. Mr. McCaul was counsel for the prosecution. He intimates that The Bulletin "absurdly exaggerates the importance of the evidence tendered in relation to it. It is of no importance to McCaul whether the evidence which he had to offer was important or not. If it was no more important than he now says it was the public may well be puzzled to know on what grounds he urged the refusal of bail on the arrest of Clarke.

Preparations for plunging the country into the turmoil of a general election are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. As witness as in Alberta. On Dec. 1st Laramore (N. S.) The lighting that can speed its progress through the darkness will revolutionize war's game, and will dominate the world. To estimate this awful war would be in the power of no man, but British enough. We let us sing "Long Live the Queen" and the Empire, and bless the men who think, he can provide the matches powder.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Teacher Lee was killed in a shooting accident, and will revolutionize war's game, and will dominate the world. To estimate this awful war would be in the power of no man, but British enough. He will be given a full black band and accompanied by the inspectors.

Mobilization of Last Line of Re-

Trouble

"DOWN WITH THE WAR!"
"DOWN WITH GERMANY!"

Gendarmes Attacked in Town
Near Trieste—Two Editors
Killed at Trieste

General, Via, Paris, Jan. 27.—The order of the Austro-Hungarian government concerning mobilization has brought about a serious rising among the southern Slavs in the south of Austria. Patches reaching here from Austria headed the movement of resistance, which began Sunday morning at Ljubljana, capital of the duchy of Carniola. After the sermon by a Slovenian priest, the crowd responded, "Down with the war," "Down with Germany." Attributed to the gendarmerie and after shots were fired the cavalry and mounted police charged the crowd. During the fight the barracks in the palace was burned and its furniture, including the portraits of the emperors of Austria and Hungary, were trampled to pieces.

At Trieste, capital of Croatia, horses of the gendarmerie and after shots were fired the cavalry and mounted police charged the crowd. During the fight the barracks in the palace was burned and its furniture, including the portraits of the emperors of Austria and Hungary, were trampled to pieces.

At Zadar, near Pula, the army of the Hungarian Landwehr was said to have been massacred. An editor of a newspaper, news advices from Austrian sources also say, condemned the order of mobilization issued on Trieste and joined many others in the south of Austria in which the official notices of mobilization were posted, destroyed, and the mobilized soldiers who had marched two of the rioters are reported to have been killed. It is believed that the rioting continues and the general apprehension is that it will spread.

Serious trouble is reported also in Trentino, where the Italian authorities have ordered that all persons refusing to submit to the decree of the government shall be arrested.

DESERVED TRIBUTE TO MEN IN TRENCHES

"Pats" Sergeant Says Experience at Front Are Terrible.

London, Jan. 28.—A sergeant in the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in a letter from the front says:

"I shall always miss my bat to any point of time. I am not afraid of trenches as they are certainly going through them unharmed, for our country is in the hands of God, who is related to us wounded or killed."

The sergeant, who has been in the rest camp to the trenches and will remain in the front line for one week, says that the men are having favorable progress.
